LOCAL HARDING
SERVICE TODAY
IS IMPRESSIVET. R. Hill Pays Eloquent Tribute to Late President in Gathering at Auditorium—Beautiful Song
ServiceROOM CROWDED WITH CITIZENS, PAYING HOMAGE

Impressive in every detail were the Harding Memorial services held at 10 o'clock this morning at the central school auditorium. The room was filled with citizens of Middlesboro gathered together to pay their last tribute of homage to their dead leader. In the back of the auditorium was a large American flag draped in black under which hung a picture of Harding framed in black. The speaker's table was also black draped.

The Rev. W. K. McClure was in charge of the program which began with a moment's silent worship by the congregation standing, followed by the singing of "America." Dr. Sam A. Martin then offered a prayer for the dead president for his loved ones and for the nation which mourns his going. After this were two songs, "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "Lead Kindly Light" by the choir, chosen from the scriptural reading by Rev. A. B. Reeves and "Aid With Me" by the choir. The choir then sang "Aid With Me" by the choir. The choir then sang "Aid With Me" by the choir. The choir then sang "Aid With Me" by the choir.

After this Rev. McClure introduced the speaker of the occasion, T. R. Hill, Middlesboro's most popular and eloquent spokesman.

Our president is dead, began Mr. Hill. Only a few weeks ago he starting on a journey west little realizing that it was for him the final journey west. Now he is gone, gone from his nation after he had directed it through the mercurial doubts and superstitions in which he found it all most to the peak of reality. He has given himself as a sacrifice for the success of his nation.

Simple Ceremony Today

Today he will be laid to rest with simple ceremony as was his wish. The speaker continued, but no ceremony can dry the nation's tears. Friends, neighbors and countrymen in countless thousands will gather today at the hour of their angelic chief. We cannot all be there but it is fitting to mark the day here with this memorial service. We can take no part in the service at Marion, but in common brotherhood we can gather here to respect to the one who has wrought so well.

Mr. Hill went on to say that it was fitting to pay homage to Harding, the man rather than the executive. Perhaps greater statesmen, greater leaders, greater diplomats than Mr. Harding have lived, but I doubt if there ever was a greater character, one in whom the fundamentals of American citizenship were more perfectly blended. It is almost as if we might hear him say now, "Turn aside from your ceremonies and let your only homage be a resolve to carry on for your country." To this we answer, "Yes," Mr. Hill said. "It is our purpose to do you will to strike at the flames you opposed to carry on the true Americanism for which you stood."

Let us like Hardings and our kindred virtues into our lives. The peak of unadorned heroism is a pure example of unadorned democracy. He never turned aside from the task he had set himself, never oversteered the small or unprincipled man. He was interested enough to pursue his work and save our thousands of dollars to the Federal Memorial University because he had an honest desire to help the mountain people.

Harding, said from machinery steered the nation through the darkest shadows of reconstruction with his first breath in the interests of democracy. His character voices today the purest strain of steadfastness and courage that may be found. The speaker declared.

Outlines Noble Traits

Mr. Hill continued, outlining the noble traits in the dead leader's character. Here first was humility of the most type. The speaker said. Men find themselves only when they lose themselves. is a quotation from Harding, often heard and truly expressing

The Nation Mourns

OF K. MALL QUARTER
IN PINAHL TONIGHT

The University of Kentucky and quarter will be in Pinahl tonight and sing at the Continental Hotel at the dinner hour and at the Games Theatre at 9 o'clock no admission to be charged at either performance.

Members of the quarter, Robert Clem and Bingham, Liberty, Decatur, and J. M. Hovary, are training the mountain cities in the interest of the university, giving their concerts wherever they may have opportunity and making local arrangements through Gene W. Martin, secretary of the Kiwanis club.

More than this though was his humanity for all rich and poor alike. Mr. Hill continued. Always he showed a broad sympathy for the under man and to the man of affairs he commended the only settlement of the capital and labor dispute when labor was considered a man.

Put above all Mr. Hill declared was the Christliness of Mr. Harding's life. He told of the simple Christmas of the late president of his childhood, when leaving Marion for the White House, carrying all to the Alhambra. Mr. Hill mentioned that Harding, had wanted Abbie With Me, singing at his funeral service, realizing he had that the part of the nation, duty is after all the only lasting thing. The speaker pointed out the significance of the fact that three presidents, namely, Franklin McKinley and now Harding, had died that this song be sung.

On a simple plan and with heart's fervor in fame is in common with he said Mr. Hill, naming the president's picture hanging under the draped flag on the stage, to pay a last tribute. Let us make a solemn resolve to take up the torch he has passed and carry on a new Americanism, a new humanity and a new Christianity beyond his dreams.

The service closed with the singing of "Nearer My God to Thee" and a benediction by the Rev. J. B. Bunn.

Discussion in Council Last Night on

MAYOR KENNEL URGES
ACCEPTING STATE OFFER

That property owners pay eight dollars per front foot for construction work on East Cumberland and Fitzpatrick avenues and that the state pay the remainder of the cost was the proposition offered by H. T. Asher, member of the State Highway Commission at the informal city council meeting last night. Adoption of the plan would necessitate a change in the original contract which provided that the state pay one third of the cost.

Only seven council members were present last night and thus not being enough to constitute a quorum the meeting was not formally opened. A meeting will be held next Saturday night at which action on the Humberd bill will be taken.

Mr. Asher made a lengthy speech in which he described in detail the work being done under the direction of the State Highway Commission in Knox and Laurel counties.

The state body has received a great deal of criticism over the state bill, but this is due largely to attacks made by the Louisville papers. He spoke very highly of Judge J. B. Bosworth and Hon. Green Garrett and their work for good roads in Kentucky.

Opposed Double Driveway
At the last meeting of the Highway Commission Logansport J. H. Boggs was not in favor of building the road with a twenty-two foot driveway on either side, saying that the state could not afford it. Mr. Asher says that he contended that such a driveway was necessary and succeeded in having this part of the plan unchanged.

It was agreed by the members however that the state would pay all costs in excess of eight dollars a front foot. Mr. Asher says that Judge T. G. Anderson will go with him to the meeting of the Highway Commission next Monday and that if it be agreeable with the city that part of the contract relating to the state's share of the expense may be changed.

His question was informally discussed by the council and property owners and Mr. Asher. Several East End property owners were present. George VanBelt took a very decided stand against paying this amount, saying that it is altogether too much. There is no use in talking out the storm here, he stated.

Mr. Rennebaum built streets here five years ago without taking out the foundations and those streets are better than ones being built here now, he contended.

Mayor F. H. Keeney favored the change in the contract. He explained that there would be no further cost to property owners that he state would take over the street at the end of fifteen years and forever keep it in repair.

Humberd End Reasonable
He stated that according to the figures contained in the Humberd bill the total cost would be $150 per front foot, a net cost of $60 or more than in third for the state.

Mr. Asher said that the Humberd bill was particularly the same as estimates made by the state and that in all probability if the bill is accepted by the city it will be sanctioned by the state.

Under the terms of Mr. Asher's proposition the state will bear the entire cost of constructing the East End bridge, a work that will cost $12,000 or more.

The state will also furnish in cash which will keep a close check on the work even to examining paving materials as they are unloaded from the cars. The state can begin the work with no delay when the contract is let.

He urged the city to accept the proposition and to the contract stating that the present members of the road commission would not be long in office and that their successors might not be friendly to local interests.

SERVICES FOR PRESIDENT
ALL OVER NATION TODAY

By Associated Press
MARION, Aug. 10.—Special trains and automobiles poured a constant stream of people into Marion today for the funeral of Warren Harding, twenty-ninth president of the United States. During the night a thousand automobiles were parked along the roads outside the city the occupants sitting what kept they might until morning. The Harding home was opened to the public at 8 o'clock this morning and a seemingly never ending stream of people began to move toward it to view the dead chiefman. Thousands of others despoiling of an opportunity to see their president made a solemn pilgrimage to the home where they stood a moment with heads uncovered before being forced to move on that others might take their places.

It seemed not Ohio alone but every surrounding state from which Marion could be reached sent legions here to pass by the bier or stand silent as the dead president was carried to his last rest.

Congested sidewalks flanked the center of the street where the home of his father is sheltering his great son again stand behind a glowing wall of flowers. On the north side, down a tree-lined stone walk that leads to the home the close crowded line kept in place by guardsmen stretched away for blocks. Hundreds upon hundreds came to join at every hour and came faster than the slow movement beside the bier could absorb them. Thousands certainly must be tried away in dis appointment before three o'clock, time for the funeral.

Word came of special trains sweeping toward Marion from every direction. Motor cars continued to bring added scores. Up every side of the street machines were massed in almost endless rows. Up the streets in all the region about the home there was a cautious stillness except for the rumble of the troop laden trucks which deposited young guardsmen at needed points.

This was the day of the home people who best knew him who had gone from them to greatness only to come back so soon in death. Whatever of pomp and parade there was about the last hours was made by these thousands themselves for those who had left their dead chief did not leave the hotels.

Meanwhile Mrs. Harding from the upper windows of the house where she spent the night viewed the columns which filled the streets five abreast and which stretched away for more than a mile.

By Associated Press
CHICAGO, Aug. 10.—The Middle West and the West joined other sections of the country halting business and industrial activity to meditate on the passing of the nation's executive. At Nogales, Ariz., observance of the day spread across the border where Mexicans joined with American citizens in honoring the dead president. Public business such as courts was suspended throughout the country. Many cities arranged for a five minute period of silence. Telephone and telegraph lines also observed a few moments' quiet. In San Francisco where the president died business was stilled and buildings were mounting symbols. Thon and others on the courthouse lawn at Chattanooga, Tenn., for an hour's impressive service.

Distribute Harding Pictures
J. J. Manning and Co. distributed one hundred fine color-tinted pictures of the late President Warren G. Harding along Cumberland avenue this morning.

The state will like go around Middlesboro in honor of at Yellow Hill and coming on to Cumberland avenue at Leath street. It is the policy of the state to go around towns in most cases he stated.

I do hope that you will come in on this proposition which will give you state aid," he said, this would be one of the most beautiful spots in the world if you had good roads out there. It would eliminate all dust and property would double and treble in value."

For empty titles we must part,

ADDITIONAL TELEGRAPH WIRE FROM HERE TO KNOXVILLE

An additional wire which will afford direct telegraphic connection with Knoxville for Middlesboro is being installed, according to Miss Elizabeth Tudor, manager of the local Western Union office. Wires now used for transmission of messages to Knoxville are also used by other towns of this section, a condition that often results in delay.

The line will be for the sole use of the Middlesboro office and will afford more efficient service. Messages to distant points are received and relayed at the Knoxville office, this being the nearest relay center. The new line is now being constructed at Knoxville and will be brought on to Middlesboro as soon as possible.

HARDING PICTURE AND FILMS OF LOCAL PEOPLE AT MARRING

The Marring Theater gave most excellent Pathe News service last night

when it showed the funeral train of President Harding and the home life of the now president, Coolidge and family. The pictures prove the quickness with which the local theater is able to give to the public picture news of nation wide interest.

Middlesboro 12 years ago, another feature of the evening's program, won approval from the audience, especially from those who were members of the graduating class of Middlesboro High School in 1912. The long white graduating dresses of the girls and the large straw hats of the boys dated the picture with interest to those not acquainted with the folks on the screen. Both the Pathe News and the Middlesboro 12 years ago will be repeated tonight.

Your Air Intake

Rhinitis is an inflammation affecting the mucous membrane of the nose. It occurs in both acute and chronic forms. The acute catarrhal form of this inflammation is termed "coryza." It is probably the most prevalent and common of all human ills. You have had it, you may have it now, but whether or no—you will have it. Acute coryza is nothing more than a cold in the head.

The symptoms are due to the presence and development of several disinct micro-organisms—which is no cause for alarm. In ordinary cases, sneezing, nasal congestion and a discharge from the nostrils always occur.

No Cause For Worry

The inflammation may extend to the throat and cause additional trouble. An attack of coryza sometimes results in partial or temporary deafness due to the blocking of the eustachian tube. This tube merely functions to equalize air pressure on the inner ear. It is nothing to worry about.

The treatment consists of large and frequent doses of good fresh air. A second step in the treatment is another double dose of the same thing. This medicine is free and will never do you any harm.

Rout Germ Army

Drink plenty water. Keep the bowels open and take a brisk walk. Aspirin taken upon going to bed coupled with the drinking of some hot liquid will make you perspire. This will throw the ranks of germs into disorder and usually in full retreat.

We may now take into consideration some of the preventative measures for avoiding coryza. Don't bundle up like an Eskimo, but wear just enough clothing to keep you warm. Should you get your feet wet, change shoes and stockings as soon as possible.

Colds are easily transmitted, sometimes affecting a whole family at once. Keep away from people who have a cold. People who sneeze and cough should be avoided.

Exercise Necessary

Above all remember this: Your resistance tells the tale. People who are particularly susceptible to this common annoyance should habituate themselves to exercise, deep breathing and fresh air. Adenoids or enlarged tonsils should be removed. The diet may be modified so as not to contain an excess of starchy foods.

Keep the body clean and accustom yourself to sleeping with the window open, winter and summer. Make a few rules for yourself along these lines and take pains to carry them out.

The improvement in your general physical condition will be surprising. By this you will stave off any future attack or at least reduce its duration and severity.

Every once in awhile the stingiest man is discovered some more. Here is the latest one: He won't even laugh at his own expense.
